“Texas Country Reporter Festival October 26 in Waxahachie, Texas 18th Annual Celebration Features Arts, Crafts, Food and Live Music

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

October 10, 2013...Dallas, TX...The “Texas Country Reporter” Festival returns to the historic courthouse square at downtown Waxahachie to reignite the great atmosphere of the arts, crafts people, festival food and live music. The festival runs from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. and admission is free for everyone.

New this year will be a celebration of the 50th anniversary of the British music invasion on the U.S. There will be live performances by A Hard Night’s Day and The Stoneleighs on the festival stage performing the greatest hits of the The Beatles and The Rolling Stones.

The festival will be complete with more than 200 specially selected vendors and artisans will spread out from the courthouse to fill the downtown. Some of the vendors have previously appeared on “Texas Country Reporter.”

For more information about the festival go to the “Texas Country Reporter” website at texascountryreporter.com or visit the Waxahachie Chamber of Commerce website waxahachiechamber.com.
