ISSUE 7 - THIRD QUARTER 2014

“LOCAL FARE” - NO CRITICS HERE

Airs Sundays at 9:30 p.m. on KTXA Channel 21 in Dallas-Fort Worth

Development began more than a year ago with Free Range Concepts to produce a local TV show about the restaurant scene in the Dallas-Fort Worth area. The end result was a weekly half-hour program called “Local Fare.”

Host of the show is Kyle Noonan, an eatery executive with big city experience in restaurant concepts and the delicious dishes that everyone’s talking about. Kyle is joined by Teresa Frosini, arts and entertainment reporter of KTVT, Channel 11, the CBS station in Dallas.

The program’s concept is a unique one because every week it features three ordinary people that visit a favorite restaurant of another guest, come back to the show and tell the audience what they think. No restaurant critics here. The program also features a cooking segment.

There is no shortage of restaurants either. The Dallas-Fort Worth area has more restaurants per capita than New York City.

“Local Fare” airs every Sunday night at 9:30 on KTXA Channel 21. The program is produced by Phillips Productions Inc., a subsidiary of Phillips MediaSource.
